▶▶ Political system

The Republic of Korea is a democratic republic, as defined by its Constitution, which states that “The Republic of Korea is a democratic republic,” meaning that the country's foundation is based on the sovereignty of its citizens, and all power comes from them.

- ❖ Korea operates under a presidential system, where the president serves as the head of the executive branch. The current president, Yoon Suk-yeol, a member of the conservative party, holds office for a single five-year term, which will conclude on May 9, 2027.
- ❖ Korea’s political landscape is shaped by two major parties: the Democratic Party, representing progressive values, and the People Power Party, which leans conservative.
 - In the 2024 general election, held every four years, the Democratic Party obtained 161 seats, while the People Power Party secured 90 seats, controlling 94.3% of the 300 total seats in the National Assembly.

Economy

▶▶ GDP in ROK

The Republic of Korea is currently the 13th largest economy in the world, with a nominal GDP of approximately 1.8 trillion USD and a per capita GDP of 33,745 USD in 2023.

- ❖ In the 1960s, ROK’s GDP was only 3 billion USD, reflecting its transformation from an agricultural-based economy into a global leader in technology.
- ❖ Economic growth has been driven by strategic policies, export-oriented development, and significant investments in manufacturing and technology.
- ❖ The top contributors to GDP include manufacturing, wholesale and retail trade, accommodation and food service, business activities, and real estate.
- ❖ The services sector employs over 70% of the workforce and contributes approximately 58% to the GDP, playing a vital part of the economy.
- ❖ The industrial sector accounts for 38% of GDP and employs about one-fourth of the labor force, with key industries including textiles, steel, car manufacturing, shipbuilding, and electronics.

▶▶ Currency & Credit rating

- ❖ The Korean won (KRW), denoted as ₩, is the national currency. As of mid-2024, the exchange rate is around 1 USD to 1,300 KRW, fluctuating based on trade balances, policies, and geopolitical events.
- ❖ As of 2023, the Republic of Korea holds strong credit ratings: -AA from Standard & Poor’s and AA- from Fitch. These ratings highlight Korea’s solid economic fundamentals, stable markets, and strong external position, supporting its attractiveness for investors.

Trade

As of 2023, trade constitutes 69% of Korea’s GDP reflecting the country’s high dependence on foreign markets. This underscores Korea’s openness to trade, including with Central America, and highlights the vital role of Free Trade Agreements in expanding global market access, enhancing consumer welfare, and improving regulatory alignment.
